

Table of Contents:

	page
Silvestro Ganassi – Lettione seconda, 1543
Io vorrei Dio d'amore	1
Tobias Hume – First Part of Ayres, 1605 (in 2 versions, for G or D instruments)
Hume – The Souldiers Song	4, 7
Hume – Tobacco	10, 13
Hume – Faine would I change	16, 18
Hume – What greater griefe (version for voice and one viol)	20, 22
Hume – Alas, poor men	24, 34
Tobias Hume, Poeticall Musicke, 1607 (in 2 versions, for G or D instruments)
Hume – Cease leaden slumber (for voice and 3 bass viols)	42, 46
Hume – What greater griefe (version for voice and 3 bass viols)	50, 54
Hume – The Hunting Song	58, 64
Ireland, Dublin, Trinity College, MS 408/1 William Ballet's Lute Book, c1610
Anon – Thou sent'st to me a hart was crown'd	70
Anon – Sweet was the songe the virgin sung	71
London, British Library, Add ms 15117, c1614-16
Anon after Giulio Caccini – Miserere my maker	73
London, British Library, Egerton 2971, early 17th century
Anon after Giulio Caccini – Dolcissimo sospiro	75
Anon – Ma grideran per me le piagg'e I monti	78
Anon – Crud'amarilli	81
Anon after Giulio Caccini – Amarilli mia bella	84
Oxford Christ Church Ms. Mus. 439, pre-1620
[Thomas Campion] – Art thou that shee	88
Anon after John Dowland – Sleep wayward thoughts	90
New York, NY Public Library, Drexel 4175, Ann Twice, her booke, 1620s
Anon – Oh where am I? What may I think	92
[John Wilson] – Wherefore peepst thou, envious day?	94
[John Wilson] – You heralds of my mistress's heart	96
[Robert Johnson] – Get you hence for I must go	98
Oxford, Christ Church Ms. Mus. 87 Mrs Elizabeth Davenant, 1624
[William Webb] – As life what is so sweet	100
Anon – Eyes gaze no more	102
Anon - Away good night [Begone, sweet night]	104
Oxford, Bodleian Library, Ms Don. C57, Colonel Probert's Manuscript, c1625-50
Anon – Come sweet love why dost thou stay	106
London, British Library, Add ms 10337, Elizabeth Rogers Virginal Book, 1656
[Nicholas Lanier] – I'll wish no more thou should'st love me	107